Successful financial year: Vogelsang expands management team

- Expansion of expertise in the wastewater, biogas, industry and transportation technology segments
- Record sales expected
- Agritechnica: Orders concluded with a high total volume

Essen (Oldenburg), Germany, January 31, 2024 – In a successful financial year 2023 for Vogelsang GmbH & Co. KG with product launches and a large number of successful trade fair appearances, the company has expanded its management team. Together with Harald and Hugo Vogelsang, Detlef Ruhmke and Michael Brinkmann will lead the mechanical engineering company into its 95th year since its foundation. Harald Vogelsang, Managing Director: "With Detlef Ruhmke and Michael Brinkmann, we're strengthening our industry and sales expertise. This puts us in an even stronger position, particularly in the strategic development of the wastewater, biogas, industrial and transportation technology segments and our sales division."

Positive business development

The international mechanical engineering company expects record sales for the 2023 financial year. "Our business divisions have also developed very positively last year. Following our already strong financial year 2022, we are once again expecting a significant increase in sales of around ten percent compared to the previous year," says Harald Vogelsang. The final sales figures for 2023 are expected to be published in March.

Encouraged by the positive business development, Vogelsang is optimistic about the new year. At the Agritechnica agricultural machinery trade fair in November alone, Vogelsang was already able to conclude orders for 2024 with a high total volume. Harald Vogelsang had this to say: "Thanks to our dynamic production model, we can react flexibly to new order peaks." Further: "With a strong management quartet, the commitment of our employees and further product innovations in the pipeline, we are laying the foundations for sustainable business success. Together, we will continue to drive the company forward and live up to our claim of developing innovative solutions for our customers."
